“... intensely physical, fast, urban, youthful, powerful.”

Dance Victoria

“All the elements of the performance come together to create a deeply moving space where time is suspended. Nothing is static. Inheritor Album can take you from being overwhelmed by the sense of community created on stage to awe at the dancer’s physicality to mourning. The performance goes beyond the emotion.”

The Sound + Noise

With raw athletic power and explosive, urban-infused dance, six performers push themselves to their limits as they pull apart the roles of inheritor and predecessor against a backdrop of stunning animations and within an atmospheric, electric soundscape.

Inheritor Album is visually stunning, emotionally moving and intellectually stimulating. It explores interpretations of inheritance and succession by looking at a transitional period between the two, creating brief snapshots of one generation’s place in time. Inheritor Album is a meditation on change that calls for simultaneous strength and surrender, with the dance embodying this duality.

The work is made up of a series of short pieces that read like the tracks of an album and features sound design by Kristen Roos and integrated projected film/animation elements by visual artist Miwa Matreyek. Part of the stage work was adapted for director Brian Johnson’s award-winning short film, Inheritor Recordings.

Inheritor Album showcases 605 Collective’s unique and collaborative movement derived from house, hip-hop, capoeira and contemporary dance practices and is a lightning quick, hugely physical, viscerally exciting and powerful performance.

Vancouver’s Company 605 continues to push into new territories to awaken a fresh and exciting aesthetic inspired by the exchange between urban and contemporary dance. Their athletic, fast-paced and playful work has attracted hip-hop fans, families with children, classical dance lovers and the wider contemporary arts community.
